1. The VELIKIYE LUKI (30°31' E/56°21' N) airfield, about 5,000 x5,000 feet, was located northeast of the town and bordered on a spruce woods to the northeast. A village was located about 2,000 feet west of the field. A double-track RR line leading to MOSCOW was located some miles south of the field.
2. The airfield had a good grass cover and two diagonal, concrete runways crossing each other in the field center. A partially destroyed hangar was located on the southern field border; west of the hangar there were four earthbunkers, presumably a fuel dump.
3. Four twin-engine commercial aircraft landed at the field every day and took off again after a 30 to 40-minute stop. Three single-engine fighters and four to six biplanes were also [REDACTED] The latter aircraft practiced take-offs and landings every day, sometimes also at night.
4. Relatively few ground personnel were observed at the field.
